

--- On Tue, 3/27/12, Christina <cwalsh@...> wrote:

From: Christina <cwalsh@...>

Subject: [ssflcag] NASA EIS meeting tonight ended in fireworks

To: ssflcag@yahoogleroups.com

Date: Tuesday, March 27, 2012, 9:28 PM

As Dan continues to hide behind his angry old-lady army, he threatens yet again to force the resignation of yet another important project director (for NASA this time). Not much has changed since the ugly days of the political Shang-hai, known as the AOC, and the idea that we will get anywhere close to cleanup by 2017 is in serious question.

To all of you who continue to drink the Dan kool-aid, these issues cannot be resolved without collaborative effort from the surrounding community, but you all seem bent on attacking each other, in favor of learning or accomplishing anything.

I continue to hope and work toward cleanup despite your endless need to attack community members for having opinions or concerns that differ from yours. We all have the right to our opinions and concerns and have the right to voice those within the public process. To those of you who spend every waking moment at these meetings just attacking others...

In short: you suck.

I look forward to working with the many individuals involved who believe in process, transparency and fairness, to help make this investigation as complete and thorough as possible. We will get there despite the yahoos involved.

Christina

Cleanuprocketdyne.org