Subject: Dan Hirsch Testimony before US Senate

Please read this important testimony that really tells the entire story of the challenges we face so well:

http://cleanuprocketdyne.org/documents/Hirsch_EPW_Testimony.pdf

It also helps us all to better understand what happened in 1959 as well as the regulatory and legislative issues of today. We all owe so much to the extraordinary work of Mr. Hirsch over three decades to protect the people below and the people of today and tomorrow. Thanks Dan!

Trudi, I think you are right. The statements made by Dan and how he frames it and puts it all together up to the issue of today, is brilliant. It also gives us a much more clear understanding about what they must have gone through at the time, but even more importantly, as you point out, are the people who exposed themselves without knowing it because they weren't told. They didn't get to make a decision about their actions relative to their risk for illness.

I hope DOE will read this as well. All of the organizations, entities and regulatory agencies who make decisions about this, need to understand the final profound connection to the end result in public health of the surrounding communities.

Thank you for sharing your very raw and profoundly important feelings on this. That's what we all need to understand better (I think).

beautifully put. Bill and I were just going through our mountain of articles over the years and came across Rocketdyne's red glare from 1998 and made us realize how important he has been to following this battle over the decades. Thanks Michael!

While primarily concerning the SSFL, the web site also presents information on some additional contaminated sites, as well as a large number of pertinent photographs.
