I am disappointed to see a talented writer such as yourself associated with the dirty antics of this person. There is a clear difference between writing and slander and he has gone far beyond that line.

The effort he has made to break up my business, my partnership, my marriage and my reputation has been devastating and nearly destroyed me. No person in all my life has been so purposefully evil, with the clear intent to destroy everything I have worked for. I guess the pen is mightier after all, but this nasty stuff has no purpose but mean-spirited destruction of a person's character. What is the purpose of that? Why would you join in his efforts?

The SSFL will finally get cleaned up now, using the idea that was proposed by Norm Riley, that he was fired for, and you all lit him on fire for (because Dan told you to). Now the very same solution is being touted as the best thing ever and Dan rides in with a crown and it's perfect. They got the photo-op at the gate, and full credit for a solution that will finally work. Too bad that people had to be destroyed for it. The damage done by the Michael Collins hate-machine is something he is probably proud of knowing his sick tendencies, but you? His latest slanderous sick postings are more of the same...devour and destroy. When will it stop? Or is it just sport to him? The idea that he won any journalistic awards is ridiculous to me, unless they give out the annual "biggest snake" award.
